Desmond attended. Rt. Rev. Desmond leaves for Louisiana where he has been assigned a diocese very shortly.

ALLEN H. GLEASON DESCRIBES ENGLISH SCHOOL OVER RADIO

Allen H. Gleason, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren H. Gleason, of 40 Highland avenue, Arlington, was the guest speaker at a recent radio broadcast sponsored by the Massachusetts D. A. R. over station WAAB, Boston. Mr. Gleason spoke of his experiences as an exchange teacher at Westminster School, in London, England. Mr. Gleason is a member of the faculty at Kent School, Connecticut and the son of Mrs. Gleason, past regent of the D. A. R. Speaking of the Westminster School, Mr. Gleason said in his radio address. "Westminster School in London is one of the oldest of the great English 'public schools,' much smaller than Eaton, Harrow, or Rugby, but with tradition going far back into the past. No one knows its actual origin, but probably some sort of instruction was provided by the monks of the original Westminster Abbey. Even today the connection of school and Abbey is carefully preserved, for the boys go to Abbey for morning prayers, and certain delegations are allowed to attend any service there, even including a coronation, on which occasion it is their ancient privilege to shout 'Hurrah' three times after the crown has been placed on the king's head. "The real history of the school, however, dates from the time of Queen Elizabeth, who granted a sum of money for the education of forty boys, to be known as 'Queen's Scholars.' This scholarship is still in existence, and is most eagerly sought after, as it is distinction of no small merit. In accordance with her well-known admiration for classical learning, Queen Elizabeth specified that these scholars should perform a play in Latin once a year, and this interesting tradition also holds force today; for a Latin play, entirely spoken in Latin, which is attended by various dignitaries, the Dean of Westminster, the Bishop of London, and representatives of the royal family, is presented three times every December. These productions are given with much care for scenery and costumes, and are a unique survival of an ancient custom. There is an interesting reference to the Westminster play in 'Hamlet,' where Shakespeare speaks of 'an airy of children little eyes, that cry out on top of question, and are most tyrannically clapped for it.' "The passing of the years has caused many schools to move out of London, such as St. Paul's, Christ Hospital, and Charterhouse, but has left Westminster unchanged in its location. As I have said, the Abbey is their chapel, their assembly hall is the old monks' dormitory, the dining hall is the same refectory which was used by the monks a thousand years ago (it also has a typical Tudor minstrel's gallery and tables which tradition says were made for wood from ships that defeated the Spanish Armada). The library, Ashburnham House, is a good example of the work of Inigo Jones, and College, a boarding house, was designed by Christopher Wren. "Of course no English school would be complete without some sort of recognized clothing, or uniform for its boys. The Westminster boys wear top hats, cut-away coats, striped trousers, and black ties. The King's Scholars also wear a variety of cap and gown, as do all the masters. They must wear this costume at all recognized school functions except when they are engaged in sports; and at 'election time,' when the graduating class are about to leave for universities, they must wear full evening dress, with boutonnieres of flowers, for three days before the actual graduation. Contrary to some opinions, they are not at all self-conscious about this formal dress, but take it all as a part of school life. "The average English schoolboy has so much in common with our American type that it is difficult to establish many points of difference. Perhaps the one which impresses itself most strongly on the mind is the shyness and reserved manner with which they approach their elders. The reasons for this reticence are probably the home atmosphere, where the old maxim that children should be seen and not heard is still in force, and the fact that English boys are sent away to school at a much earlier age than our boys, where discipline is much more strict in the lower grades. Thus it seems that their disciplinary background is much stronger and more instinctive, also that they lack a freedom of expression and action to be found in the average American boy. All this, however, does not mean that they are not interested and curious about the affairs of the world, or that they cannot take part in conversation. The bright boy, I should think, has perhaps a more intelligent grasp of his studies and of world affairs than ours; certainly the English boy is further advanced in his comprehension of the classics and history, to name two outstanding examples. He is eager to know about the world in which he lives, like any normally intelligent boy, and especially is he eager to hear about the American world. Some of his notions about us are rather fantastic. He imagines, for example, that our skyscrapers are a mile high, wonders what one does in case of fire, and asks, with some hesitation, if they sway in the breeze. One has to guard against the temptation of exaggerating the facts, for like most curious boys, they will believe anything one tells them. "In sports they are active and eager as well, without the sense of self-display that is so often associated with sports in this country. They play two kinds of football, association and rugby, both of which are good exercise, but not as spectacular or dangerous as American football. One misses the bands and the organized cheering, although there is plenty of enthusiasm on the part of the spectators. The game of cricket is so typically English that it cannot be described to one who has not seen it. It is largely a test of skill and endurance, so that a single match may last for two or three days, which makes for rather long intervals during which nothing very exciting happens. The devotees of the game will tell you that cricket is the finest game in the world, and it certainly does not lack crowds of interested spectators; but I had the impression that its popularity was on the wane among the younger generation. The normally active boy does not enjoy a sport in which he stands idle in the field or sits in the pavilion for sometimes hours with almost nothing to do but watch. Cricket is, however, the accepted game for all English schools, and the Eton-Harrow game at Lords is an occasion of practically national importance. "One of the fundamental differences between English schools and American boarding schools is the 'house system,' a variation of which has recently been adopted at Harvard College. The principle of this system is that the school is divided into groups of about thirty or forty boys, who live together, eat, sleep, and play games under the supervision of a house master. Thus the English schoolboy has two loyalties, to his school and to his 'house.' At Westminster there are four houses: College, Grant's, Rigaud's, and Busby's; also two 'day' houses, Ashburnham and Homebolder's, for boys who do not actually live at school. The rivalry between the houses in sports is great, but otherwise they all cooperate as parts of the school entire. "In governing a house the housemaster is supreme in all disciplinary matters, but ably assisted by a senior boy who is chosen 'head of house,' a great honor, and house monitors, who see that order is maintained. The social side of school life centers largely around the house as a unit; and there are literary societies, singing societies, and dramatic societies in each house. Thus the boys have the opportunity of forming intimate friendships with those of their own houses, as well as the acquaintances made in the school at large. "I have said enough, perhaps, to convey the general impression of life in an English school, but there are two characteristics of the English schoolboy which I should like to mention before closing these remarks. The first is the innate respect for tradition and authority, not consciously followed, and the second is the real appreciation of the difficulties which confront the generation. Do not be misled into thinking that the English are so formal or reserved or straight-laced that they never unbend themselves or enjoy life, for that is far from being so. What is really a national trait, in the middle and upper classes of society, is a respect for 'law and order' not only in the strictly legal sense, but in their whole conduct of life. They are convinced of the rightness of many things as they are, and hesitate to change those things until convinced that the change will be for the better. There is less 'breezy optimism' in American life today than there was, shall we say ten or fifteen years ago, but we are still perhaps a little more 'progressive' at any cost. One often hears the English 'public school' attacked as the breeding-place of snobbery and hopeless conservatism, yet one cannot help remembering the many men of real worth and service to England who are the products of that educational system.

Arlington High Drops Game By Single Score

In the fastest game of the season in the Arlington High School gymnasium, the Chelsea High School basketball five handed the Arlington High basketballers their first defeat of the year, 25 to 24 last night. Name of Milton Street Resident First In Race For Selectman — Candidacy Known Shortly After Announcement Made By William O. Hauser Who Will Not Run This Year—Mr. Murray Long Member of Republican Committee—Engaged By New York Firm—Active In Local Politics

The campaign for the coming Town election which takes place early in March took on new life yesterday when it became known that Arthur R. Murray, of 10 Milton street, would be a candidate for Selectman. The news of Mr. Murray's candidacy followed closely upon the announcement that William O. Hauser, present chairman of the board, would not seek re-election this year. Political "experts" have been keeping their eyes on the political picture locally and have been awaiting announcement of various candidates. The name of Mr. Murray is the first to be placed in the running and from now on it is expected that other candidates will follow in line in rapid succession. Mr. Murray is well-known locally, having lived in Arlington for seventeen years, fourteen of which have been spent at his present address and the remainder on Marathon street. He has been a member of the Republican Town Committee for ten years and took an important role in supporting the election of Senator Charles Warren, Representative Nelson B. Crosby, Rod Peters for the Republican State Com-

MANY DEMOCRATS SEEK FEDERAL JOBS IN NEW ENGLAND

Even political plums are sometimes sour, and the New England Democrats in the next Congress are having many a headache over the problem of patronage. As Representative William N. Rogers of New Hampshire puts it: "I have never realized there were so many Post-offices in the little State of New Hampshire." Each mail brings floods of applications from the faithful Democrats at home who did their bit for the party and now seek their reward. An amusing sidelight on the scramble for Federal jobs is the deluge of requests received by Republican Congressmen from Democrats back home asking copies of the official register—the book that lists the important jobs in the service of Uncle Sam. Each member is allowed but three copies and the Democrats used theirs up long ago. David I. Walsh, senior Senator from Massachusetts; Fred M. Brown, Senator-elect from New Hampshire and the Democratic Representatives from the other New England States have several weeks left in which to decide on appointments that will cause the least discontent. Among the most coveted posts, and posts which must be filled by able men, are those of customs collector, internal revenue collector, United States attorney and United States marshal in the various districts, to say nothing of postmasterhips and lesser positions. There's another side of the picture, too—the daily list of Republican appointments accumulating dust in the Senate files. Postmasters in all sections of New England are being nominated, approved by the White House and sent to the Senate with not the slightest hope of confirmation. Whoever gets them, there are some good Federal jobs awaiting Democrats after 12 lean years in New England.

Police Chief Returns With Alleged Thief

Chief of Police Archie F. Bullock has returned from Shelburne Falls, Massachusetts, with George L. McBay as a prisoner. McBay was arrested by the State Police from Shelburne Falls and charged with stealing the automobile of Dr. Lanigan, of 187 Main street, Medford. The car was parked in front of 12 Alton street in Arlington when it was stolen. It was recovered in Shelburne Falls. McBay was arraigned in East Cambridge Criminal court this morning. Another car, owned by Albert Scott of 9 Claremont street, Arlington and stolen while parked in this town was recovered by the police from Station 5 in Boston this week. A third car, stolen in Medford was recovered by the Arlington police in this town and turned over to John M. Mayo, of Tufts college. The car had been loaned to Mayo by Ross Welden, of Yarmouth, Massachusetts, the owner.

Plan To Repair Fire Damage At Phelps Estate

Plans are under way to repair the heavy damage caused by fire to the home of Duane F. Phelps, at 441 Mystic street, Arlington. A permit has been granted by William Gratto, inspector of buildings, to W. Fillmore of 25 Cherry street, Cambridge who will have charge of rebuilding that portion of the house which was damaged by the blaze. The cost of the repairs will amount to $10,000. The famous landmark was damaged in a spectacular night blaze some weeks ago. Another permit has been granted to A. Blaikie, of 137 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, to build a side entrance and foundation at the house, owned by Isabel F. Kelleher, at 87 Menotomy road. The repairs will cost $125.

Local Officer Turns Fireman

Everybody, of course, knows of the efficient work which genial Maurice J. Scannell, of the Arlington police department, is doing in Arlington Centre as a traffic officer. Very few, however, know that Maurice is quite a fireman when the occasion demands. He proved it yesterday afternoon and it is only fair that we should report it. A brisk rubbish fire started in the rear of the Regent Theatre block on Medford street. Losing no time, Officer Scannell went the spot and extinguished it single-handed, without sounding an alarm or calling for help from the fire department. Maurice was being praised today for his quick work in preventing the blaze from spreading.

URGES WOMEN TO TAKE INTEREST IN GOV'T PROBLEMS

"In these closing days of the short session of the Seventy-second Congress and with legislatures of forty-one states meeting in January, what can be accomplished for the state through the Federation?" asks Mrs. S. Blair Luckie, of Chester, Pennsylvania, Chairman of the Department of Legislation of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. "I can conceive of no avenue that offers greater opportunity for education and mental expansion than an intimate study and comprehensive grasp of the great governmental problems that confront our states and nation, nor a work more important than an endeavor to help in the solving of those problems, including appropriation bills, balancing the budget, increased revenue, farm relief, reorganization of the federal governmental machinery, conservation measures, reduction of veterans' relief for post-war disabilities, and Philippine independence. "Each subject is colossal, yet every thoughtful club woman with time at her disposal, can and should understand their main features. Because a subject sounds difficult we should not side-step it with the suggestion that it be left to experts. The details perhaps but certainly not a knowledge of what each means and what it may involve. "The General Federation has been instrumental in securing passage of both the Smith Hughes and the George-Reed Acts, which provide for establishment of the Federal Board for vocational education and funds to support vocational education in agriculture, trade and industry and home economics in the states. The Economy Committee of the House has recommended to 'suspend for one year all payments to the states under the Federal Board for vocational education except those for industrial rehabilitation, estimated at $8,500,000.' To withhold all Federal funds would wreck the vocational programs in the states. Since state appropriations for vocational education are usually conditioned upon federal funds, many states will be unable to use funds already appropriated. "The General Federation favors legislation supporting infancy, maternity and county health units declaring: 'It appears consistent with good administration that there should be cooperation between federal health agencies, the United States Children's Bureau and the United States Health Service, in their respective fields, and official state and local health agencies toward this end.' There must be federal cooperation including financial assistance in further development of public health service. "The General Federation reaffirms its conviction that the United States should become a member of the World Court and will continue its untiring efforts in behalf of the entrance of the United States into the 'World Court' until it becomes an accomplished fact. "The General Federation has endorsed the sea route from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. "We believe that women citizens of the United States who were taken overseas by the government and served as employees of the War Department and are disabled should be properly cared for by the government. "For more than a quarter of a century the General and State Federations have worked for temperance; the Eighteenth Amendment endorsed in Convention assembled and the enabling act approved. "Investigation has proved that

Lacasse To Get Hearing

Amadee D. Lacasse, young Manchester, N. H., autoist whose automobile struck and killed George Spero of Arlington on the night of Thanksgiving will be given another hearing in the East Cambridge court next Monday. Lacasse was scheduled for a hearing last Thursday but this was again postponed. He was recently fined a small sum and given a six months sentence to the House of Correction when he was found guilty in the lower court of driving so as to endanger and operating an automobile with defective brakes. On three other charges, namely manslaughter, driving under the influence of liquor, and drunkenness he was allowed to go free after he had pleaded not guilty. The case is causing considerable comment because it has been continued several times.

C. E. Society Seeks New Members Here

The Lookout and Publicity committees have also done wonderful work for the C. E. Society at the Heights Baptist church. We have had many posters hanging around the C. E. Room. A weekly bulletin has also been edited and many notices have been put in the local newspapers. All members were sent out Rally Day Cards, also have secured 30 active and associate members, and are now starting an efficiency and membership drive. Won't you be one of the newcomers? It will do you a whole lot of good. Come next Sunday at 5:30 and listen to our Special speaker.

OF THRILLING INTEREST TO THE WORLD OF WOMEN.

ART LOVERS' CLUB HEARS OF ARTISTIC AMERICAN POTTERY

The first meeting of the Art Lovers' club for the New Year was held at the home of Mrs. Walter H. Stewart, 46 Jackson road, West Medford. Mrs. J. A. R. Scott of Cambridge was assisting hostess. There was an unusually large attendance for the time of year, and a spirit of good cheer and cordial friendliness prevailed.

The President, Mrs. Frank W. Pote, presided and opened the meeting with a few gracious words of welcome and warm wishes to each and every member for a Happy and Prosperous New Year. After the regular routine business was disposed of, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Stewart, program chairman. Mrs. Stewart, before presenting the reader for the afternoon, asked Mrs. Pote to give a short talk on Current Events. Mrs. Pote is well posted on the subject and is making a study along world wide activities. She has recently been in great demand, having spoken at several club gatherings, and always to the delight and information of her audiences.

At the close of Mrs. Pote's short talk, Mrs. Stewart presented Mrs. Charles R. La Rose of West Medford who brought to the Club a paper of great interest; the subject, "The Romance of Art in Pottery" was treated poetically, and with artistic construction, and yet with much sound information.

The particular brand of pottery talked of was the Van Briggie Art Pottery, in Colorado Springs, nestled at the very foot of Pike's Peak. In the shadows of snow-crowned range and rocky canyon, there is a pottery. And here each day potters work.

In 1899 the first potters came here, lured by the inspiration of wonderful coloring which Nature afforded in her rampart range. That man was an artist who appreciated every tone of light and shadow. In the thirty-odd years that have passed since he first set his potter's wheel in the shadow of old Pike's Peak, other potters have come to be guided by his artist-vision, until today these products of one artist's imagery have grown into an industry of no mean importance and the pottery has won world-wide fame for the variety of its texture, and the velvety depth of its glaze. This pottery has won world-wide recognition; exhibited at the Paris Salon in 1903-04 where it was awarded highest honors, a diploma and gold medal at the Lewis and Clark Exposition and highest awards were made at the Arts and Crafts Exposition in Boston in 1906-1907.

Mrs. LaRose spoke of a tribute paid to Van Briggie by a visitor writing in the guest book at the pottery. "It is only fitting that the soft colorings of Colorado's sunsets should be perpetuated in Colorado's clay—and that thing you have done."

Mrs. LaRose told much of the Artist's life, all too short, as he died as did Schubert, at a very early age; but his work continues. His pottery is located in the most beautiful and unique municipal park in America.

More space has given in this talk to one great American potter than to others because we must feel a natural pride in what is intimately American and therefore nearer our hearts and most deserving of our admiration and pride of possession.

Mrs. La Rose had beautiful specimens of this artistic pottery for the club to see, and pictures of the more important pieces in color.

Just before Mrs. Pote adjourned the meeting for the social hour, Mrs. Frank Griffin spoke briefly of the signal honor shown the club by the Federation Club, president of Boston, in inviting their president to speak at the meeting held last Wednesday at the Y. W. C. A. hall. Mrs. Pote was asked to tell in detail just how the Guest Day Entertainment, given recently at the Congregational church, by the Art Lovers' club, was done. Mrs. Pote gave a brief but informative description of the "Living Greek Models and Greek Frieze" put on by Mrs. Walter Stewart, praising highly Mrs. Stewart's ability and originality.

The social was most enjoyable. Delicious refreshments were served and the tea table was presided over by Mrs. Gilbert Hood and Mrs. Charles La Rose.

Fish Facts For All Homemakers

"Sea food values and sea foods to cut costs," was the subject at the regular meeting of the American Home group of the Medford Hillside Mothers' club, which met at the home of Mrs. F. B. Marshall, 34 Martin street, on Wednesday afternoon.

Fish is fairly rich in iron, excellent in phosphorus and it is easily digested.

The fatty or oily fish is rich in vitamin A and D.

Medical authorities know today that common goiter is due to lack of iodine in the system, and in many communities, particularly in the middle west drinking water is iodized. Iodized salt is used, and iodine is given to school children several times a year to combat this disease.

Salt water fish is rich in iodine and iron, so should be on the table often.

The chairman, Mrs. F. W. Steeper, gave a talk on a chart telling of calories, protein, calcium, phosphorus and iron in foods. Calorific make fat, protein muscle building, calcium builds teeth, phosphorus is tissue building and iron is blood building. There are foods that are strong in each of these and are essential in the diet.

The chairman told of radio broadcasts three times a week on station WLEY at 6.15. Monday on agriculture, Wednesday on home making, Friday on 4-H club.

She also told of meetings to help those who are interested in road side stands to be held at the Middlesex County Extension office in Concord on February 3, and March 3. And for those interested in tea rooms at the same place on March 10 and April 7.

Refreshments were served consisting of a jellied vegetable salad, oatmeal, crisps, Swedish prune pudding, coffee and cake.

Quilt and Rug Exposition Attracts Many

"Something different" indeed, was the quilt and rug exhibition which was given on Thursday afternoon in the First Methodist church under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society.

Lovers of hand work went around and around the vestry upon the walls of which were displayed quilts of all kinds and ages and upon tables hand made rugs of all descriptions.

Each visitor was supposed to vote for the best old and new quilt and the best old and new rug, each of the four classes to receive a blue and red ribbon.

Many of the older quilts bore explanatory notes, which added to the interest, and as the spectator went around the hall she gleaned bits of romance connected with many of the articles.

Three old fashioned woven coverlets belonged to the Barrows family of 20 Washington street, Medford. One made by Esther Barrows, grandmother of Frank A. Barrows, bore the legend "Sheep raised, sheared, wool washed, carded, combed, spun and dyed, loom set up, warped, threaded and woven by Bessie Barrows, age 18, in 1827." This was in the "Bronson" pattern.

Mr. Barrows contributed a coverlet in the "Ring and Chain" pattern and his daughter, Miss Marion Barrows, a beautiful green and white "Star of the Sea" coverlet.

Other coverlets were on exhibition including one in the "Hatter's Castle" design.

It was hard to decide which quilts showed the better workmanship, those of modern manufacture or those made many years ago. Certainly no one could say that quilt making is a lost art. One of the lovely modern designs was the double wedding ring design and always cherished autograph quilt, and many with the tiny stitches of patient quilting.

Mrs. Cheser George won the first prize on the oldest quilt with a beautiful silk quilt in the cube pattern made by her great aunt and about 100 years old.

Mrs. Ella Alden took the red ribbon with a quilt which was over 100 years old and placed in a very intricate pattern.

Mrs. Carl C. Clarke, captured both ribbons in the modern quilt class with the "Double Wedding Ring" and "Around the World."

Miss Marion Barrows took first prize on a rug made by her aunt, Mrs. Sarah Zinck in Nova Scotia and Mrs. Warren was winner of the second prize.

Entering into the spirit of the afternoon other women brought family heirlooms which attracted much attention.

Mrs. Carl C. Clarke, chairman of the Ways and Means committee of the society was in general charge of the afternoon. A food sale under the direction of Mrs. Wirt Godwin and Mrs. Charles Boulter was an attraction. Tea was served by Mrs. Arthur Merrill and her committee. Miss Ella Alden and Mrs. G. Harry Foster poured.

Miss Betty Baldwin, a senior at Medford High, is back to school after three days out with the gripe.

GRAMSTORFF BROTHERS IN BUSINESS SINCE BEFORE CIVIL WAR

Twenty-one years ago, Theodore E. Gramstorff and Herman F. Gramstorff purchased the Soule Art Publishing Company of Roxbury, Mass. This company had been in business continually since the civil war, being organized in 1859. The Gramstorff brothers incorporated and formed the present firm under which they operate. The business was located at 101-104 Ferry street, Malden, during 1911, and has been in the one location since.

Gramstorff Brothers do an extensive business in picture framing, developing, enlarging, printing, etc. They have hundreds of agents in the various towns in and around Malden. You may leave your films at any one of the Gramstorff agents and be assured the work will be of the highest quality, combined with early returns. This is made possible by the enormous amount of up-to-the-minute machinery with which this company is equipped.

One feature of the company is the work done in enlarging portraits for fraternal organizations, homes, lodges, individuals, and universities. Much of this work comes from banks having enlargements made of directors, presidents and other officers, also from Court Houses, City Halls and other municipal departments where pictures of Judges, Mayors and other city officials are desired. Enlargements are made from cabinet size photos. Recently a one inch head photo was enlarged to life size about 14 inches in all. Another enlargement was of a photograph colored in oils from a small picture to one of thirty-six inches by fifty inches. Much of this colored work is for churches. Orders have been received from all over the United States and some from abroad. Many orders are received from educational publications, both religious and business, to furnish pictures for their pamphlets and magazines.

Gramstorff Brothers have one of the largest stocks of old time pictures, and furnish newspapers, magazines and other publications with copies. Many of these pictures are no longer in existence and this company has the only known copies. There is hardly a company in business in the Art line that has such collections.

Another large part of the business is the making of lantern slides used by lecturers and ministers for educational purposes. Special apparatus is required for this kind of work and a thorough knowledge of technique is necessary for this process.

Medford and Malden may well be proud of this concern which has had a continuous success since before the civil war, and under the management of the Gramstorff Brothers, has grown to one of the largest of its kind in the United States.

To not play bridge is surely a crime
With bridge so great an indoor pastime.
But all will count you far from a bore
In case you know what follows the score.

Even before Lens and Culbertson staged their "Battle of the Century" (with apologies to Mr. Dempsey and Mr. Tunney) the great indoor pastime was bridge.

Far be it from me to tell you that you should trump your partner's ace (if you have thirteen trumps) or similar secrets of my own remarkable playing. After all, these secrets were handed down to me, in a mouth-to-mouth fashion, from my hard-gambling ancestors.

Please note that it has taken about eighty words to approach the point, if any, of what I am going to tell you about this time. Who says that I haven't mastered the "Approach System"?

Everyone plays bridge now—a few years ago it used to be good old Auction Bridge. First the wives learned to play it and then the husbands did. And then the fun began! Instead of one big Battle of the Century almost all husbands and wives staged their own private little battle every time they played—and usually continued it far into the night.

After a few years the fights became tame and colorless because everyone really began to know what it was all about. Something had to be done about that, so they invented Contract Bridge just to make it harder and a little more interesting. And now, every time you play bridge in a mixed group, you find that history is repeating itself all over again.

Hope that you are not like the woman who had led all her aces and then did not know what to do. When it comes to serving a bite to eat after they have added the score, I hope that you will always have a few "quick tricks" in your hand. You do not need to "observe the conventions" and you will find that your "responses" will be most enthusiastic.

Baked Beans—Welsh Rarebit
Heat a large can of Baked Beans. Make a highly seasoned Welsh Rarebit and combine the two. Really tastes cozier better than it sounds.

Another suggestion is one which is made of salmon:

Baked Salmon and Eggs
Brush two slices of salmon with melted butter. Brown on both sides, cooking for about ten minutes. Cover one slice with slices of hard-boiled egg moistened with a little white sauce. Place other slice of salmon on top of this. Sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs. Bake until crumbs are slightly browned. Garnish with lemon slices and parsley.

I shall give you just one more recipe. This time it is for:

French Toast—with Apple Sauce
Serve each person two slices of French Toast with a thick layer of Apple Sauce in between the slices. (Be sure to have your Apple Sauce tart.) Sprinkle with powdered sugar and cinnamon.

THE MAGICIAN OF THE AIR
THE GREAT EGG TRICK
GREETINGS, Sahib! This is the Great Egg Trick which was disclosed to me by fakirs of Bombay in far-off India and which I will now teach you so you may mystify your friends to their delight and entertainment.
A party of tourists were watching a fakir perform on a sidewalk in Bombay. Placing several eggs in front of him, he exclaimed "A pearl of great price to be person who can make an egg spin!" They all tried to spin the eggs which he had placed before them but they could not. Then he leaned forward, passed his hand over an egg, and pushed it gently with his fingers causing it to spin merrily. You, too, can mystify your friends with this Great Egg Trick as does Chandu, the Magician of the Air. Secure a hard-boiled egg before-hand and conceal it in your sleeve. Then place several raw eggs in front of your friends, asking them to try to spin them. While their attention is busy with the spinning, bring forth the hard-boiled egg and substitute it for the raw one, spinning it. The hard-boiled egg will spin. The raw ones will not!

GUITARS AND GO-GETTERS

If there is any country where Romance might reasonably be supposed to hold its own with Progress in this prosaic epoch of technocracy et al, it would certainly seem that sunny Spain should be that delectable land.

Now, however, from "Old Madrid" itself, comes the harrowing ukase that no longer may mundane tasks be calmly set aside until manana. Progress which brooks no barriers cries with strident voice that the job of today must be tackled hoy and not manana. Twelve candidates for diplomatic service arrived one little half-hour late for their examination and a stern examiner promptly canceled their applications. This easy-going attitude must cease, he said, and instantly dismissed them.

Even to Americans whose constant flair for culture brings them to the classroom door always—or nearly always—on the very dot, this ruling seems a trifle hard and one hopes Prof. Americo de Castro will temper Spanish justice with Castilian mercy and give the aspirants another chance.

The serious side to this manana business, however, lies in its international aspect. If serenading caballeros must lay aside their soft-toned guitars early in the evening that they may arrive on the job sharp at eight next morning like any mere Anglo-Saxon, what self-righteous satisfaction remains to the latter? No longer able, as he turns in his hard swivel office chair, to contemplate his own austere virtue of punctuality with the mental picture of his Latin brother turning over on his soft, comfortable couch as he sleepily murmurs "Manana," bang goes another prop to his nationalistic amour propre.

Perhaps much of the "manana habit" always was largely a piece of pleasant fiction anyway. The technocrats may discover it was the Quixotic way of distributing work, put into practice long before other lands ever dreamed of six-hour days and five-day weeks.—The Christian Science Monitor.

GIVE PROSPERITY A CHANCE

A recent syndicated newspaper article pointed out that present and future Congresses must expect to face an army of irate taxpayers. These "rebellious Americans" believe that the increasing cost of government is the greatest menace now facing the country and that drastic retrenchment is vital to the work of recovery.

They are right. We are coming to the point where we cannot afford to own property—where homes and farms and buildings are liabilities, not assets. Thousands of men are out of work because the weight of taxation was too much for firms they once worked for, to bear. Thousands of farms have gone under the sheriff's hammer for taxes. Thousands of home owners live in constant fear of the next tax statement.

Bring taxes down—and give prosperity a chance to come back.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 14.—Conspicuous as an epic, S. M. Eisenstein's "Que Viva Mexico" eventually will reach the screen as three feature pictures plus an indefinite number of short subjects.

Lying on a blanket in his sunlit backyard, Upton Sinclair gave me this news of the film Hollywood said was impossible to cut. In that convalescent state of influenza, the Socialist author is happy that the long period of suspense is over, that the responsibility for the picture now rests upon the shoulders of another—Sol Lesser, who has agreed to cut and release the film on a percentage basis.

Sinclair says: "Eisenstein went down to Mexico to make a travelogue, to be gone four months at most. He ended up by staying 14 months by shooting nearly 255,000 feet of film and by using three times as much money as my friends had promised him."

"It would be absolutely impossible to release this enormous footage as a single picture. The 'Hacienda' episode alone assembled into 14 reels, after Mr. Lesser has trimmed it again, it will be one of the three features we expect to get out of the material. The other two will be the tropical episode, a village idyll taken near Tehuantepec and the bullfight sequence. In addition, we'll get a number of short subjects."

Sinclair admits that a number of individuals have attempted to prevent the breaking up of the film.

The author put no money into the undertaking himself, he declares, but his wife contributed a considerable sum.

Harry Brand tells the story of the Hollywood actor who got called for giving a bad check to a local gymnasium.

As the victim had been pretty tough over the phone, the actor showed up personally to square the matter. "Pardon me," he said, "did the check bounce?"

"Did it bounce?" he snapped. "The boys are playing handball with it downstairs."

HOLLYWOOD PARADE.

What a cradle of fame the East Denver High School was! The following are all alumni: Ernest Truog, Robert Z. Leonard, Douglas Fairbanks, Harold Lloyd, Sidney Arisworth, Harry Raper and Paul Whitman.

Looks as if Helen Twelvetrees may be signing for the Chevalier picture. Anyway, she took a test this week.

Daddy Sunshine Club Rules

1. Be kind and helpful to others.
 2. Look both ways when crossing streets.
 3. Always be kind to dumb animals.
 4. Write a letter to Daddy Sunshine, or have Mother or Dad write it for you, every now and then.
 5. Try to bring a "Ray" of Sunshine into the lives of your parents and others every day of the week and every week of the year.
- These rules are not very difficult for good girls and boys to keep. Most of them are kept by them anyway.
- Mail your letters and stories to Daddy Sunshine, in care of this paper. He will answer them in the Daddy Sunshine Column.
- Write on but one side of the paper, and place your age and address on the letter after your name. Give the day, month and year of your birth.
- To join the club all you have to do is promise to keep the rules—and keep them.

About Plymouth

Dear Daddy Sunshine
I am sending in a story of Plymouth.

New Plymouth is on the slope of a hill, stretching east toward the seacoast, with a broad street, about a cannon shot long, leading down the hill, with a cross street in the middle, going southward to the river, and northward to the land. The houses are constructed of hewn planks, with gardens also enclosed behind, and at the sides with hewn planks, so that their houses and court yards are arranged in order, with a stockade against a sudden attack.

At the ends of the street there are wooden gates. In the center on the cross street starts the governor's house. Upon the hill they have a large square house, with a flat roof, made of thick sawn planks, stayed with oak beams, upon the tops of which they have 6 cannon, which shoot iron balls of 4 or 5 pounds and command the surrounding country. The lower part they use for their church, when they preach on Sunday. They assemble by beat of a drum, each with a musket, in front of the captain door. They have their cloaks on. Behind comes the Governor in a long robe, beside him comes the preacher, his cloak on, and so they march in good order.

This is the story of old "New Plymouth". Here is a puzzle of girls' names.

Mrs. McCann thanks the following committee for their assistance in packing and distributing the baskets: Mrs. Elizabeth Fraser, Mrs. Wendell McNulty, Mrs. Mary E. Suggests Mothers' Club

At a meeting of the committee-men of Troop 14 Boy Scouts, held at the home of Major William Bogrette, 24 Magoun avenue, Roland L. Crowther, 13 Second street, scout master of the troop, suggested that a mothers' club be formed among the boys of the troop. His suggestion also included the plan to provide a pin for each mother to wear, which would correspond to her son's rank in scouting. He further urged that, subject to the approval of scout officials, arrangements be made to permit the troop to accompany the Legion and the auxiliary to Oak Grove cemetery on Decoration Day, at which time the boys would place a geranium on each veterans grave.

Committeemen attending the meeting were: Dr. Jacob Roberts, Frank Gavan and Lloyd Miller. Major Bogrette, assistant scout-master of the troop, was host. The troop is sponsored by Medford Post, American Legion.

Thanks Alice for an interesting letter. Anything that has to do with the early settlers of Massachusetts, is always welcome news for the column. Hope you find time to send in a similar letter real soon.

Why Not Group All Your Bills Have One Account To Pay—

We are prepared to meet the individual needs of salaried employees, wage earners, store keepers, professional men and women, who have limited or no credit facilities at commercial banks.

There was a time when borrowing was considered unwise for personal needs. But times have changed. Today most of the country's business is transacted on a credit basis. And instead of its being to one's discredit, the ability to borrow, on one's character and earning power indicates a favorable reputation, and confidence of one's fellow man.

AND FINALLY REMEMBER—Our experience gained in dealing with people in nearly all walks of life enables us to advise you in a practical way, without embarrassment, and you will always be given the courtesy and consideration that you have a right to expect.

Penn Oil Company Markets High Grade Products

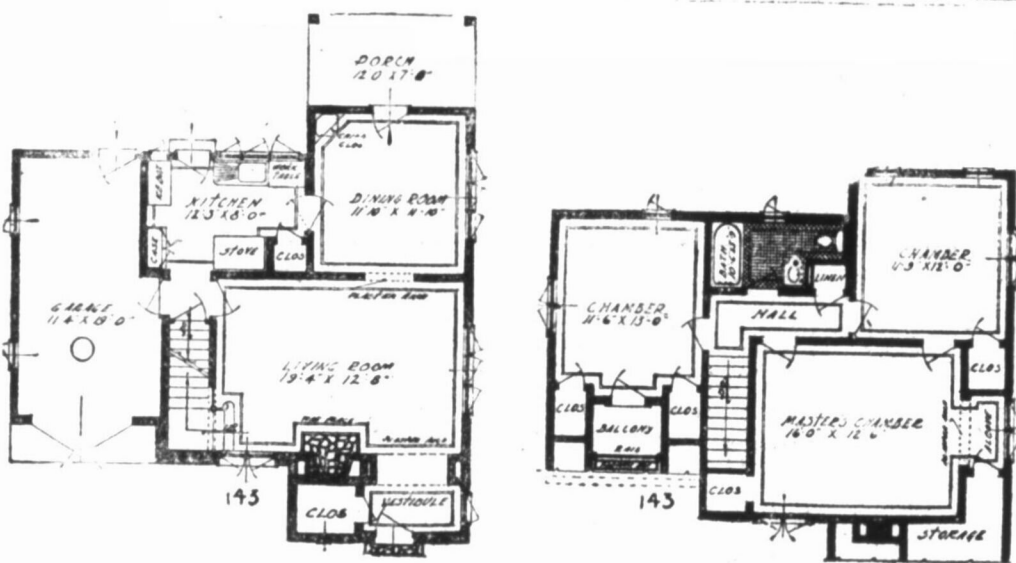

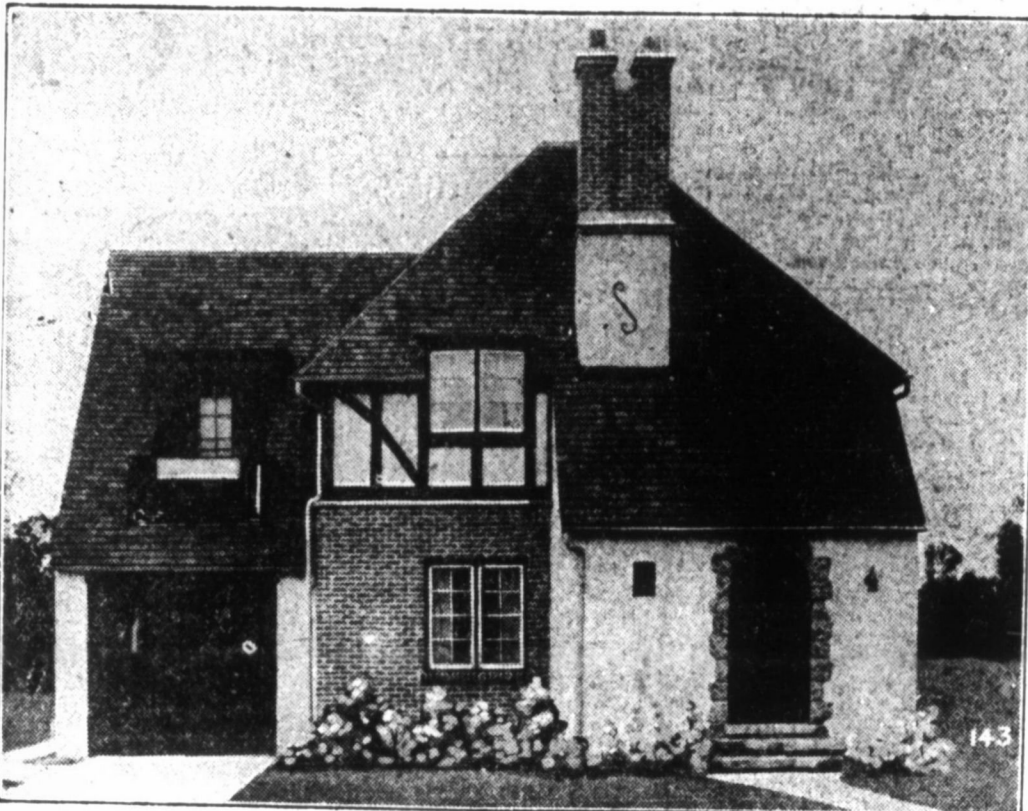

The Penn. Oil Company, located at North avenue, Somerville, and ably managed by State Senator, James C. Scanlan of Somerville, sells only high grade products. This company is now marketing for range oil a very high grade product which is as clear as water and known in the trade as "water white".

Range oil burners require a very highly refined oil, after the use of a considerable quantity, if the quality is not good, carbon will form at the base of your burner. This carbon formation is not sufficient always in the beginning to cause trouble, however, when carbonization comes it remains until you use the proper grade of range oil.

The Penn. Oil Company has always endeavored to sustain the fine reputation they have for quality products and now, more than ever, with the market apparently glutted with oil products, they are using every effort to maintain the high quality of the products sold by them.

In addition to a complete assortment of range and fuel oils the Penn. Company distribute Powerful Penn. Gasoline. This is sold through service stations conveniently located in and around the towns and cities of Greater Boston. Powerful Penn. Gasoline well deserves the name as it is all the name implies and more. When next in need of gas, try a tankful of this wonderful gas; the result will please you.

ATTRACTIVE SIX ROOM DWELLING

ATTACHED GARAGE SPECIAL FEATURE BARRINGTON HOME

Many new home builders are looking for plans of houses which have attached garage. The advantages of this type of construction are manifest, especially if the home is located in that section of the country where bleak winter prevails.

Here the attached garage is a decided advantage, as it enables the owner to leave and enter the car under shelter. At the same time the car is kept in a milder temperature so that the radiator will not freeze or the grease and oil thicken and harden.

The architectural design of the Barrington is attractive, being decidedly informal with its walls of brick, stucco and half timber. The broad expanse of roof is broken by dormers, valleys and hips. Asphalt shingles are stained to contrast effectively with the siding, and the result is a pleasing composition.

The entrance of the garage is at the front of the house, the garage being situated in the left wing. The arched stone entrance is at the extreme right, and effectively balances the center masses of brick and stucco.

Large window areas are planned to allow a flood of sunlight and fresh air to enter the interior. These window openings are situated at the side and rear of the house. The sash are casements, swing outward as though to welcome the sunshine and air. The small panes and slender muntin bars of the sash add texture and attractiveness to the composition.

The walls of the Barrington are well insulated, the plans calling for a material to ward off heat and cold. The insulation material chosen in this particular case was of the wall board type, although the blanket type would be equally effective.

This same insulating material is placed over the ceiling of the second floor to prevent the escape of the heat. A large percentage of heat losses in the average house are through heat escaping into the attic, and the thoroughly insulated home will cut fuel bills approximately 15 per cent by the use of this material.

The floor plans of the Barrington are in keeping with the attractive appearance of the house. Across the front is the living room, flanked on the left by the stairs ascending to the sleeping quarters above. The living room is 19 feet 4 inches by 12 feet 6 inches in dimension. The fireplace is at the front. The hearth and breast of the fireplace are composed of field stone, giving a rugged informal atmosphere to the room.

Behind the stairs is a small service hall with doors leading to the garage, the kitchen, the living room and the basement stairs. Behind the hall is the kitchen, a well arranged little laboratory with built-in pantry cases, broom closet, and other features. The sink is under the rear windows, while a refrigerator is in one corner.

To the right of the kitchen is the dining room, 11 feet square, with a door leading to a small open porch. In one corner of the dining room is a built-in china closet.

Upstairs are the three chambers and tiled bath, located conveniently off a small hall.

Each of the sleeping rooms has cross ventilation, and windows are found in at least two sides. Most of the windows are of the casement type with outflung ventilators.

The bath room is tiled, with a built-in tub and metal medicine closet. The bowl is of the pedestal type, while the closet has a siphon jet. This little room is compact and well arranged.

Off the upstairs is a linen closet where spare linens and blankets may be stored for future use. The basement holds the heating plant and laundry. The heater is of the warm air type, and it is equipped with coils which permit hot water during the winter months. A hot water tank stands close by.

Vines Add Charm—Grace

Vines can be grown anywhere if they are planted properly and selected according to their natural habits and inclinations. There are varieties for every purpose—annual, shade-loving and sun-seeking, evergreen and deciduous. Some are noted for their lovely blossoms; others for their colorful fruits and berries.

Whether you desire a dense screen, a tall climber or a ground cover, you will find a vine that will exactly serve your purpose. Even apartment dwellers may know the charm of Mother Nature's graceful draperies—the ever-growing ivy and Wandering Jew will thrive in window boxes or pots.

There are no other plants that are capable of covering buildings and clothing large unsightly objects in attractive green—vines alone can do this. Not only are they worth while for hiding obtrusive adjuncts to the house, such as garage, tool houses and laundry yard, but they transform rocky banks and rough walls, relieve the monotony of rigid lines, and soften harsh edges in the landscape.

The laundry section of the basement contains two built-in tubs with hot and cold water faucets. A drain in the cement floor is conveniently placed.

Not been excavated, but arrangements have been made by which the coal for the fuel bin is delivered into the bin through the garage, an intake being located in the floor of the garage so as to allow the coal to slide through a chute into the bin.

Baffling "Dat Ol' Davil Winter"

By MARTIN CHANDLER

WHEN that direful villain, Winter, begins his chilly onslaught, you can chuckle by your fireside IF you know your property is fully protected against the ravages of storm and sleet. If you haven't checked up on your roof and spouts and ledges, of course you'll have to sit and shudder when drenching rains descend and icy blasts rock your dwelling. Seriously, though, it's exceedingly wise to have your home overhauled when you're doing your fall cleaning. Like the famous stitch-in-time, an annual examination will save you many large repair bills. Arrange with your painter to check up on your house. The putty at the windows should be examined; the roof and the flashings should come in for their share of scrutiny. So should the downspouts, walls, floors, sills, ledges, jambs and crevices of the house. If the paint is beginning to show marked chalking, and will rub off on your finger, it's time to repaint. If you would do so at the least expense. Later on, when deterioration has progressed further, it will require much more labor to prepare the surface. If you have a shingled roof that is dull and faded, re-stain it when the first signs of weathering appear. Neglected, unpainted shingles are apt to blow away because they dry and curl up. Besides, a drab roof gives your house a bedraggled appearance that lessens its value. Tin roofs should be painted on an average of every two years. The tiny pin-holes in the tin plate catch moisture and cause rust spots and subsequent holes. With a smoothly painted surface, rust cannot begin its destructive work. Good paint and good workmanship will produce the best results. To buy cheap paint is false economy. Cheap paint—that is, paint that is cheap because of inferior manufacture or inferior ingredients—covers less surface, fails to protect the wood or other structural material adequately, and does not last. Paint to beautify and you preserve—paint to preserve and you beautify.

Would Provide Public Works Memorial To Coolidge And Eliot

Bills filed yesterday with the State Legislature, on petition of the Metropolitan Improvement Association through Van Ness Bates of Boston, vice president and legislative counsel, would provide for permanent public works memorials to President Calvin Coolidge and Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president of Harvard University.

The memorial to President Coolidge would include naming of the Swift River Reservoir project of the Metropolitan water district, now under construction, for the late President and the present State highway leading from the Worcester-Springfield road past the site of the dam to the State line via Amherst and Northampton. The proponents also suggest that the park lands around the reservoir be known as the "President Coolidge Memorial Park," and that through public contributions an appropriate monument be erected where the highway and reservoir meet.

Dr. Eliot's memory would be honored, under the terms of the bill, by naming the contemplated bridge over Charles River at Gerry's Landing, Cambridge, opposite Soldiers Field, for him. It is pointed-out by the petitioners that if legislation is enacted this year, it would be possible to complete the bridge and memorial in time for their dedication March 20, 1934, the centennial of Dr. Eliot's birth.
